Sacred Spaces

EVERSON
TRIP
COMMITTEE

Dear Everson Member:

What makes spaces sacred? Legendary religious destinations? Natural or created beauty? Is sacred space defined by what happened there? This week, in partnership with the World Monuments Fund, we will explore the confluence of religion, architecture, history, geography, and culture. We will learn about the sacred spaces of the Abrahamic traditions, the communal spaces that define civilization, and the sacred in the personal that provides peace amid chaos. Through the ten morning and afternoon lectures, we will visit some of the most important and threatened, historically sacred sites of the world.

Among the speakers will be a well known historian, Ken Burns, who will enlighten us on sacred spaces during a morning lecture and on also on Wednesday evening in the amphitheater.

Pulitzer Prize winning author and architecture critic for the New Yorker, Paul Goldberger, will lecture on historical preservation.

We hope you will join us for this stimulating trip. Trip insurance is recommended.

Sincerely,
Nancy Haylor, Trip Coordinator
